

A Wish – Home at Christmas

Christmas is such a special time of year,
A time for your family to be so near.
But there are many who won't be at their house,
It makes them feel like such a louse.
For they are thousands of miles away,
They're doing their country's bidding for very little pay.
Facing danger around every bend,
They know quickly their life could end.
But while they are so far away,
They still think of Christmas day.
Think of family with so much bliss,
Standing under the mistletoe waiting for a kiss.
But instead they get an all-hands meal,
It sure ain't much of a good deal.
Who knows where they will sleep tonight,
With the Star in the east shining so bright.
All they have is memories of the past,
Sleep won't last long and be over much too fast.
The unknown they will face again,
And pray they will see the day's end.
Oh, a wish to be home for Christmas,
But this day they will continue to do their business.
Pray for our military forces so far away,
And pray they will still see the end of the day!

AMEN!
